One might as readily expect to find John Simpson _ the Republican leader in the Sixth Assembly District and Superintendent of Office, with a soiled collar, unpolished boots, baggy trousers or battered tile, as to catch him without a good story apropose the occasion and just dancing or the end of his glib and eloquent tongue.

John ny Simpson is what is known in this age of reformers and theorists as a "practical politician," He has had experience enough to teach him that platform resolutions are Impocuous, and that reform is no the battle cry with the fellows who run the primaries and do the hustling on election

GAN PICKED UP BOAN AND THREW

The dapper little leader is honest enough, too, to be frank and plain about the alleged dark and devious ways of practical politics. Refusing to close his eyes and hypocritically ignore the things that all but the Phariaces see on every hand, Mr. Simpson treats practical politics as a fact, and not as a Dugaboo wherewith to frighten timid in '71, when Ellery set up O'Donovan Rossa citizens into camp.

As a practical politician, Johnny Simpson has been an eminent success since, in 1869, when be was but twenty-three years old, he participated in his first political battle.

as dainty as a maiden. He counts a friend every acquaintance. His right little, light little person is always clad in the latet fash ion, and his sandy curls are surmounted by a glistening dicer.

The primary was called to be held in little ban 11, about 20 by 85 feet in size, over Pat Shearighnessy's saloon, at the corner of Broome and Pitt streets.

"All torn away now and a big tenement house or the spot," interpolated the practical politician, with a long-long-ago look in his round face. "Pat" wife was a strapping big woman.

his simple honesty, as Johnny Simpson spoke of "knockdowns" and "set-tos" as ordinary affairs, quite the expected thing in a Sixth District Republican primary. But when the inspectors declared the polls closed, you know, that was 🗪 signal,"

"At that moment there was a mock row started among our boys, and then big derry Crowley—he's a ship carpenter over in the Navy-Yard now—and Town Reagan another strapping big fellow, who is out in a Buffalo grain elevator now, Dicked up little Eddie Egan and threw him bodily onto the table."

John Simpson stopped to expectorate dryly in quiet enjoyment of this reminiscent fun. Then he waved his artis over his head and kicked, first with one foot then with the other, and went on :

"Eddie, he swam the ballots all off on to the floor, and then-"THEN there was a general row.

"Everybody fought for all he was worth." The readers of THE EVENING WORLD Who have the pleasure of Johnny Simpson's equaintance will please include their naginative faculties in picturing that 100 ound giant in a free fight!
